

IN THE ABSTRACT:

Please replace the abstract on page 27 with the following clean copy:

C' Adenoviral vectors can be used in vaccines to cause antigen-presenting cells to display desired antigens. Disclosed is a vector and associated methods which transduce antigen-presenting cells better than currently available vectors, enabling the vector to be delivered in lower doses, and thus improves the efficiency of adenoviral vaccine technology.